THE EOUIPSE OF FREE TRADE

Perhaps the most depressing and discourse. pe thing about the politics of the present day s the eclipse of Free-trade among the well-todo and presumably educated classes of the community. Wherever you go, among what Bishop Warbarton called "the better valgar " you sas signs that the old wholesome belief in letting trade alone is dying out. The man who talk over the wine after dinner to first-class railway carriages, or in olub smoking rooms, are almost all at butlom Protectionists. A certain number begin by decision that of course the principle of Free trade is sound enough, and that there is no gaing ving it; but that perfunctory obeisance performed: they hasten to enlarge upon the beneats of Protection. "Honly other countries world have the sense to adopt Free trade, nothing could be better, for per as well as for them; but since they won't it's rather a doubtful game. That is a very common remark, and one constantly made by men who heart. But in spite of their apparent auti-Prorotionist bias, these phrases show that the speaker has never really grasped or understood the principle prescher by Mr. Cobden and Mr.

Bright Unless a man can say. " Even if every other country is the world were Protectionist, it would be best for us to remain Free-traders." his so-called adbesion to Free-trade say that and says instead that it is doubtful if s based on the sand. The man who cannot we can stick to Free trane in the face of the whole world, is in reality saying. I don't really know if I can go on buying sugar and corn so chean and saving so much every year on beef and muttod, while you are paying so deer for it. a terribly one-sided game and if you don't look out. I may have to give it up. Yet not one in a undred of the balancing Fair-traders can ever be got to reless this. They envelops the simple. proposition we have just nut in a cloud of misty restoric. They talk with pomp and emphasis of the essential necessity for recommende in all the transactions of commerce—as if commerce could not be trusted to look after itself and to enforce the fundamenta rule that you et mothing for nothing, and precious little for aispence" if you are a Protectionist. They wrap a tangle of sentiment and sophister, round their legs in the effort to show that you can sell without baying and that bull the loaf is better than the whole quartern. At last, intoxinated by the exuberance of their own verbosity, they discover that the teachings of the school of Cobden are cast iron and out of date, and that our principles of action in matters of commerce ought to be reviewed in a statesmanlike and liberal spirit. For some time this sort of twaddle—we should call it twaddle to speak about reviewing in statesmanlike and liberal spirit the conslugions of the multiplication table—was reserved for private consumption. Of late, however, it of 27th February, 1894, that the best possible visited Australia as a member of the London has crept into the newspapers, and, mark, not the newspapers which appeal to the unnotification being sent to Heads of Government recently married, has lost her jewels, valued at soluctated, and the masses but into those which are in a special store the organs of the rich and the cultivated. For example, the Pall Mall Gasette speaks of the Cobden Club as if it were the repository of a sort of fossil creed-a creed so fantastically antiquated as to be almost riduculous. Its tone is of the kind which Professor Hurley might adopt towards some provincial society which still tried to propagate pre-Darwinian theories as to the origin-and modifications of species. How comes it that Free-trade has suffered this colinse? We do not think that any very laborate or farefetched explanation is required. The answer is, we suspect, that which Dr. Johnson gave to the lady who asked him the cause of a blunder in his dictionary. Pure igno auce. maple the production of the market of the course of the recrudescence of the Protectionistspirit in society and in the Press. It was perhaps a mistortune that the victory of Free-trade was so entire in England. Had it been less overwhelming, the men who converted the nation would have seen the necessity for not putting off their armour so wickly and so completely. So utter was the out of the Protectionists, that the victors nover dreamed of a raily... Honce, the present generation grew up uninstructed in regard to the docrine of Freedrade, and took the matter on trust. The result was akin to that which happens in the case of the wouth brought up in a striot, mechanical, and unreasoning orthodoxy. The Morning Post announces that the Crescent | The first attack on, or denbis bluted in regard is being got ready to immediately convey relief to to the dectrine of Free trade encountered crows to warships on the Azetralian station, and by the young men who had grown up since the leath of Cobden seemed conclusive, and one after another they fell vioting to the seductions of the sceptical attitudes They have never, learnt the reasons on which Free Trade is based, and hence its partial or even complete Serious religious rlots bave occurred at abandonment involves for them the surmounting seventies is, per as, attractive. The principle verence and awe, and is yet too old to attract as a novelty. The plain reason then that Freetrade is suffering an eclipse is that the present generation has not taken the trouble to understand it, and so is easily worked on by persons whose interest it is to obtain the abandonron of President Cleveland, as it is believed that I ment of Free-trade. These persons, course ously or unconsciously, are endeavouring to establish

An Anglo Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of latey ears been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Elsek and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Piluti produnciations are given
